A Coalition Of Queers Does Not A Government Make!

For Action Against The Refugee Invasion: People's Struggle Is The Key!

THE Australian People have spoken: a pox upon both Houses of Parliament and upon both Coalitions. From now on, we don't just have a coalition of the Liberal and National parties in Opposition, but for the first time, a coalition of Labor and the Greens in Government.

The Polish-German philosopher, Friedrich Nietzsche, once said: "a coalition of cripples does not one strong man make". The Australian People have no faith in either the Coalition of Queers, led by Julia Gillard, or the Coalition of Cretins (ie. pathological liars), led by an Abbott wearing a condom upon his head and who displays his machismo in budgie smugglers. He sought to display his manhood to the nation on the problems of immigration and refugees, but with one intent - to shaft it. Yet, Gillard mimicked him - U-rang-atango-for-two; red-haired monkey see; ape-shit do. But with allies such as Dr. 'Bruno' F. Brownknows, a political caricature created in the ferment of Sasha Baron Cohen and Barry Humphreys inspiration, she and the Australian people have Buckley's at stopping the refugee invasion - period.

Refugee Crisis Was The Question

The real shafting of the Nation lay in the refugee question. The refugee invasion goes on and on without any effective consultation or consent of the authentic Australian People.

Whether we process the invaders in Timor and then fly them in, whether we deny a few visas because they jumped a queue (then we have a token 'expulsion' and we appear suitably hard whether or not in budgie smugglers), they keep coming.

Australia participated in the criminal wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. As these wars wind down to the inevitable defeats, masses of refugees, including those who claim to have been 'our collaborators', will seek entry to Australia - as did the Indo-Chinese after 1975. It should be borne in mind that the former Labor Immigration Minister Arthur Calwell opposed that war, as we do the current wars. We remember too that Calwell said: "two Wongs don't make a White." But now it's two Ibrahims, two Viratas, any two persons who can wrap a towel around their heads - regardless of their Faiths.

The Gillard and Abbott circus Coalitions are having their liberal, humanist, tone, set by the Greens.

Bob Brown party not about the environment

The Greens are not nice guys in Koola suits, but people of questionable predispositions in business suits. If forced to choose between refugees on roofs or Koalas in the Gums, the bears lose every time. It is people who are wittingly or not the envirocriminals in Australia (everywhere!) and more people makes more crime when too many try to live to First World standards. But because immigration involves race and nationality - it is a matter only for the Greens of anti-racism uber alles. Let them all in; give them Public Housing, Welfare, Jobs, everything Australians can be denied.

The fundamentalist Moslem refugees who also get entry to Australia courtesy of the Greens and their inner-city lefty allies, would also wage their Jihad against the bum-bandits. Do they forget this too? Those whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad.

Gay Marriage: So Necessary, So Urgent

What's the point? Is it an attempt to reduce the population, the Brown-Nose way? Or is Bob Brown being tongue-in-cheek - the only question being whose tongue and what cheek? This mighty question of same sex marriages vexes our Parliament as if the future of our People rests upon the right to define what a ring-finger really means. Laws must change, judges must bend (when not already bent), rights must be Con't p.2

affirmed and the goal is having a good time.. Is this Sodom and Gomorrah? If we were religious, then this must truly be the End Times.

Will the Liberal-National Coalition really fight this? And if it actually succeeds in Parliament, will they reverse it? We say 'not', because at the end of the day the same capitalism they both serve, favours same-sex marriage. We suggest they all relocate Parliament to the nearest bathhouse, Roman style. In fact it is rumoured amongst back-benchers that the Viceroy proposes to reconvene Parliament in precisely such a location. Audacity! petitions this most-gracious Madam to raise this question transcending the pro-found cleavage in both Coalitions. When will the real Caligula (regardless of gender and preference) stand up? With more palace coups in both Coalitions over the last few years than occurred in the Roman Forum since Sulla, Australian politicians can proudly be referred to in the vernacular as – knocking the top off.

Adopting children – a gay right?

Who is truly happy about all this? Taking a line out of Bruno where the gender benders wish to adopt foreign children, we note that in Australia loving same sex couples can adopt children (local or foreign). Every two paedophiles will now become formally sanctified as a loving same-sex couple at a local Black Mass. Now days they don't even look for defrocked pastors to confirm the rite – there are plenty out there who regard it as holy anyway. We note that in Russia that there is a law about children being adopted overseas by homosexuals (paedophiles?). A strong Russian alliance of secular nationalists and an ethically traditional clergy have organized against it, a phenomenon that has grown stronger since the liberal weakness of the Yeltsin years. Alas, not in the Western Emporium!

New totalitarians

The French New Right philosopher, Alain de Benoist, coined the term "totalitarian liberalism" almost forty years ago. He did this to distinguish modern liberalism from the old Enlightenment liberalism. Unlike the old liberalism that respected alternate positions, the post 1960's liberalism of the multiculti capitalists has a totalitarian agenda equal to anything a Bolshevik or Fascist could have imagined. And unlike the old totalitarians with their penchant for paramilitary style coloured shirts (red, black, brown, whatever), or the populist fascism of Evita's Shirtless Ones (her powerbase of the poor who launched the peronista), the totalitarianism of these liberal social engineers (or social in-SIN-derrierres?) is that of the Shirtlifters, (better known as the arsenista). It will be imposed upon you! Hence we see Human Rights tribunals telling us how to think.

Greens? Or Ring-Masters Of Destruction

The vision of the arsenista is very clear, and we suppose that it is firmer than a suppository. It translates as an AIDS-infected death by a thousand cuts to the Australian Nation.

Where does this Banditry lead? Adam Bandt, Greens MP for Melbourne, encapsulates it so well. He was once a Trotskyite (like Gillard) and he saw the Greens as a way to bring on communism. Of course, he reflects the ultimate compromise: the former communists, many Trotskyites and other lefties all went over to globalist capitalism, but the capitalists required propagandists to espouse 'freedom' from the barriers of race, nation, gender, sexuality, drug-taking and more. These Trots became the Kommissars of Kapital and therefore the Australian partners of the regular US neo-conservatives who were also often of Trotskyite origin. Irony: these US freaks brought on the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan that the Greens say they oppose! And these wars spawn millions of refugees in countries still exploding in numbers.

Sir Richard Attenborough warned:

"I support a group called the Optimum Population Trust, who campaign to reduce birth rates, because I think if we keep on growing we are not only going to damage nature, but we are likely to see more inequality and human suffering.

In the next 40 years the earth will need to accommodate nearly three billion more people.

That's more than the current population of the whole of Europe, Africa, North and South America. How are we so sure of these predictions? Well, we know that more than a billion of them will have children and live long enough to become grandparents. And that's all that needs to happen for there to be nine billion humans in 2050. It's not people having huge families - it's just a lot of people doing what humans naturally do."

The Greens' solution to a population crisis is to spread the global problem by swallowing up the planet into a Third World swamp rather than sanitise it – locally!

Against rootless cosmopolitans!

The rootless cosmopolitans and other deracines are determined to thoroughly root out the authentic Australian People. Audacity! responds: bugger off, but elsewhere!

We offer the alternative vision, of Bernard O'Dowd, (a noble Australian poet admired by John Curtin and who drew on Nietzsche for inspiration); he said in his Australia:

LAST sea-thing dredged by sailor
Time from Space,
Are you a drift Sargasso, where the West
In halcyon calm rebuilds her fatal nest?
Or Delos of a coming Sun-God's race?
Are you for Light, and trimmed,
with oil in place,
Or but a Will o' Wisp on marshy quest?
A new demesne for Mammon to infest?
Or lurks millennial Eden 'neath your face?

The cenotaphs of species dead elsewhere

Or trail uncanny harp-strings from your trees,
Mix omens with the auguries that dare
To plant the Cross upon your forehead sky,

The Greens Attack Aussie Workers, Truckies, Farmers

THE Greens pose as the party of the environment. Audacity! concedes that some sincere environmentalists have joined the Greens; but we do not regard the Greens as an environmentalist party. Rather, the inner-city, sexual life-stylists and ex Trotskyite communists who make up much of its voter and organizational bases, have a humanist and globalist agenda all of their own. Environmentalism is just a cover. And right now, they use this cover to ruthlessly attack Australian workers, truckies and farmers.

In his book Ozonomics, Andrew Charlton, an economist and former adviser to Kevin Rudd, dissects and reassembles the Australian political system into three movements: the "popular nationalists" including most of the Nationals, Bob Katter and the union-affiliated members of the ALP; the "neoconservatives" mostly to be found in Tony Abbott's Liberal Party; and the "progressive globalists" such as himself and Rudd. He says that the popular nationalists have acquired powerful reinforcements with the ascent of the Greens.

We reject that model absolutely!

Greens Senator: Dr. Bob Brown, the Gillard circus ringmaster-cum-queen-maker!

The Nationals only make economic protectionists noises as part of a deception as they sell out Australian farmers to agribusiness and foreign imports and mining; the Liberals' model is essentially globalist whatever words are used; and the Greens favour a different type of globalisation.

The Australia And The Good Neighbour policy issued by the Greens show what they're about.

They advocate free trade in the Pacific area—and with others too - when it serves 'humanitarian' aims. Free trade hits at Australian business and destroys Australian jobs. Agricultural and industrial jobs are lost this way. The Greens favour an open door immigration policy to the Pacific countries so as to offset 'climate change' (supposedly as ocean levels rise). This sort of immigration undermines the taxpaying Australian. Of course, the Greens are loud on Greenhouse gas emissions. Carbon dioxide is held responsible for climate change (is that really so?). The Greens seek to shut down industries that are said to be carbon dioxide emitters. Is that why the Greens sought to increase truck registrations to $23,000 per year? They backed down on that in October, but are still out to put trucks off the roads ostensibly to encourage rail transport.

And there's water policy. The Greens are hell-bent on pushing through the Murray-Darling plan that will see water cut to Australian farms to 'save' the river system

When we read between the lines of all this, we sniff out that someone is playing with the Greens.

Free trade suits the multinationals who 'export' to us. Immigration brings low-paid workers which destroys the Australian working class, by driving down the price of labour. Destroying local industry means we are forced to import and pay for it with mining. Getting rid of the farmers means the land is open to mining. Disposing of truck owner-drivers leaves transport in monopoly hands and these companies will make the profits in serving the foreign masters.

The Greens are the cats-paw of the globalist regime! They are the perfect dupes. Full of moralistic rage and dreamy visions, they do the dirty work even more effectively than a John Howard era union buster head-kicker body-hire company. They have better PR than a multinational and they will keep at it till victory.

It is part of Real Australia's fight-back against globalism that we target these fakes and kick them hard!

Henry Lawson: Poet Or Prophet? (Part One)

Rob Fraser

"He knew intimately the real Australia ...and above all the dauntless spirit of the Australians."

These words were spoken in eulogy by the Prime Minister of Australia, W. M. (Billy) Hughes, after Lawson's death on the 2nd of September 1922. The Sydney funeral was witness to the largest number of Australians in this nation's history ever to turn out to pay their final respects to another Australian. The entire 12 km route from St Andrews Cathedral to Waverly Cemetery was lined with mourners representing every section of the Australian community - from Clerks and Storemen to the Prime Minister, State Premiers, Judges and members of both Federal and State Parliaments.

This mass phenomenon was not so much as to acknowledge the man or his life, but to pay homage to an idea born from his pen, of an Australian People living free from foreign influence and sharing an unselfish concern for the welfare of their fellow Australians, as part of their essential national character. This eldest son of a poor farmer, who left school at the age of 13 and who was forced to migrate to the slums and factories of late nineteenth century Sydney, became the most popular and published writer in Australia's history.

The popularity of Henry Lawson's writings amongst Australians arose because they painted an authentic portrait of the Australian People which, whilst reading them, saw itself. In his works Australians saw themselves and through his works, the Australians saw themselves remembered to posterity. He was loved, because through the characters in his stories he attributed to the Australian People the qualities and attributes that they themselves wished to possess and he showed them to be the type of people whom they wished to be.

Henry Lawson had a dream that Australia would become the perfect society. He is a philosopher just as much as Plato, who espoused a similar dream in his 'Republic', or Thomas Moore with his 'Utopia'. This perfect society, free of crime, injustice, poverty, exploitation and unhappiness, would be "home" to a clean living, prosperous, upstanding, healthy and happy Australian Race. Lawson envisioned that Australia would be a shining example to the world of how all the evils infecting a society could be expunged by a homogeneous, self-respecting and altruistic-minded community.

If Henry Parkes is to be remembered as the "Father of Federation", then Henry Lawson must be recognized as the Father of our People, who sculptured and breathed life into the clay from which the Australian People sprang.

Henry Lawson was the standard bearer and chronicler of those people who wished to be identified as Australians. He acted as "midwife" during the emergence of a new ethnic group which evolved from the children of the expellees and refugees from Britain and Europe who had sought to create upon this last unspoiled tract of earth, a new soc-iety and culture of their own making, free from all that was bad in the Old World.

The Australians, as described by Lawson, are not English, Scott, Polish or Anglo - but simply Australians. A hybrid People, autochthonous and native to "The Great Southern Land", they are descendants of the various European Peoples who migrated or were expelled from all the Old World lands during the 18th and 19th Centuries. The end of the 19th Century saw the completion of an evolutionary process, the establishment of an essential identity and culture-spirit - and its product, the Australian People. It democratically decided to be legally recognised as such. One of the Australian Parliament's first acts was to legislate to protect this Australian identity.

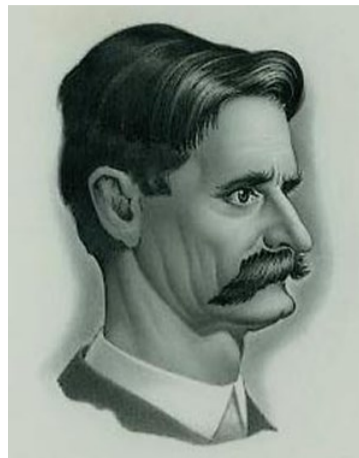

Henry Lawson recognised that the newly evolved ethnic group, "The Australians", would always remain a minority amongst the more populous peoples of the world. Their only hope of avoiding extinction was for them to develop both a reserved pride in their national character and altruism,; this was described by Lawson as socialism, a faith that would weld all Australians, no matter what position they held in society, into an inseparable - and therefore everlasting - national community.

Today, most attention concentrates on Lawson's literary career, rarely touching on his political views and making no reference to his philosophical writings, which were cloaked in poetry and parable. Acknowledgment is seldom given to Lawson's rare insight into the problems which have faced, and are still being faced, by Australians today, - such as the water crisis, globalisation, foreign investment, crime, poverty, housing affordability, immigration and the debate over who really is an Australian.

Few authors writing about Lawson deal with his prophet-like ability to foretell events, such as the failure of Britain to defend Australia in the Second World War, the rise and then demise through greed of Australian industry, the Global Food Crisis, the world-wide fratricidal wars that would see the end of European hegemony and the rise of the USA, Asia and India, all that which came to threaten the way of life of a poorly-governed Australia.

The works of Henry Lawson that are still well known are most likely to be the often humorous depictions of Australian life in Lawson's time. This is the "safe" Henry Lawson, safe for those people amongst us who profit from the distress of the Australian People and safe for those who make a living from enacting policies that will deny following generations of Australians the high standard of living and security that they themselves grew up with. These selfish people have no place in Lawson's Australia. These profiteers and vandals find comfort that the writings of Lawson will perish through obscurity along with his vision of an Australia that could have been.

Today the Australian People struggle to survive in a new Dark Age. But, just as the Age of Enlightenment sprang from the rediscovery of the knowledge of the ancients by the 18th Century Europeans, so the re-discovery of our own uniquely Australian philosophy contained in the writings of Henry Lawson will give fuel to an Australian renaissance that will ensure the survival of the Australian People from extinction.

Henry Lawson: 1867—1922

It was the Australian People's greatest misfortune that 'our' Henry Lawson was a shy, unassuming and sentimental person unsuited to being a Politician. But, it is a rare thing that a People are blessed with a philosopher who is also a politician and who can make their revolutionary ideas into a reality. Perhaps we are yet to see the Australian arise from our midst that will make Henry Lawson's dreams into reality. In the meantime, it is our duty as Australians - if we wish to prevent the not-so-distant future extinction of the Australian People - to keep his teachings, dreams and spirit alive through these Dark Ages, until 'that' Australian comes.

"Listen through Houses and Senate - listen from east to west

For the voice of one Australian who will stand above the rest;

Who will lead in his country's dawning, who will lead in his man hoods noon -

The man will come with the hour, but the hour may come too soon."

"By the term Australian we mean not just those who were merely born in Australia. AUSTRALIA FIRST PARTY

THE Australia First Party received over 13,500 votes in different areas of Australia in the recent Federal Election.

The party had candidates in five House of Representatives seats in New South Wales and Victoria and a Senate team in Queensland (which polled just under 10,000 votes).

In other contests earlier this year, the party polled over 3000 votes in a Hawkesbury City Council by-election (NSW) and some 867 votes in Penrith (NSW) in another by-election. Both these polls were in June.

Substantial publicity was won in both national and local media.

The electoral presence of the party is an important aspect of its overall work. Those who voted for Australia First — will do so again.

That the party has developed a (small) electoral and community clientele was demonstrated in a by-election in the Sutherland Shire Council on October 16. This time the party reached the 4% line and received some 931 votes.

Registration An Achievement

That the party contested the Federal poll was a result of its registration as a party. This was achieved on June 16. The party is resolved that the registration will be maintained.

The party's national committee has decided that efforts will now be made to register the party in Queensland and then in other States.

The registration of the party in other States will be part of a corporate plan which will see the construction of several State entities controlled by a central incorporation.

The party is determined that its ideological,, political and organizational unity will not be disrupted. It can be fairly concluded that it has been 'white-anting' which has undermined several patriotic efforts since 1990.

Growing Organization

The expansion of the Australia First Party is a fact. However, the party is acutely aware of its limitations that it must 'plan' its way forwards.

Accordingly, two major pamphlets have appeared. The Party Of The Nation sets out the nature of the party's organizational strategy and method and the Branch And Activities Manual gives the details on doing the job.

The Eight Core Policies Of Australia First: A Programme And A Method For National Rebirth!

Whatever will benefit Australia, that we are for; whatever will harm Australia, that we are against. William Lane

2 THE Eight Core Policies of Australia First are the basis of association for the party. They are (with explanations and the implied ninth point) as follows:

1 Ensure Australia Retains Full Independence

Protect our sovereignty (national, constitutional and personal) and maintain an adequate defence, whilst being reasonable and fair in our nation's international dealings.

2 Rebuild Australian Manufacturing Industries

This is the only way we can be self_ sufficient. It will provide jobs for our children, and help buy back the farm and allow Australia to be free of foreign debts. Our infrastructure has been run down over many years - it must be rebuilt. We must improve the practicality and relevance of our educational systems, and target government support for industry to diversify, innovate, perform and expand. We recognise that small business is fundamental to this policy. A satisfactory financial environment is also urgent and essential.

3 Control Foreign Ownership

Bring foreign ownership and investment back under control.

4 Reduce and Limit Immigration

Immigration mistakes can be big long_ term mistakes. Immigration policy must take into account social cohesion, employment opportunities, urbanisation and environmental issues

5 Abolish Multiculturalism

End the divisive, government -funded and institutionalised policy of multiculturalism.

6 Introduce Citizen-Initiated Referenda

Amend the Australian Constitution such that the people can initiate a constitutional referendum which, if approved by the Australian people, will amend the Australian Constitution. This simple step will confirm the political authority of voters and make legislators aware that they are the servants of the Australian People, not their masters. The people directly should also possess the sovereign right and the power to initiate other legislation

7. Strengthen the family

Promote policies that strengthen and protect the traditional family.

8 Strive to Rebuild A United Australia

Promote policies that recognise the interdependence of city and country.

9 Democratise Other Policy Issues

All other policies (non-core policies) are matters of free conscience and are not binding upon Australia First's future parliamentarians or councillors who are to represent their electorates.

Issues of public interest on which Australia First needs to formulate policy will be canvassed with the party membership, and plebiscites conducted where deemed appropriate by the party's National Council. The party also permits branches to formulate specific electoral policies or community policies not inconsistent with the Eight Core Policies.

From time to time, the party will issue material that provides interpretation of the core policies. This interpretative material would reflect the spirit of the party.

The organizational purpose for this statement of policy and system for policy creation is simple: Australia First does not require weighty tomes which change from month to month, as do the programmes of the Establishment parties and those who ape them. It requires a focus for action and for unity within the party.

Australia First is to build a new national movement. Practicality is method.
