A MATTER OF PUBLIC CONCERN.

TO-DAY we send broadcast throughout the colony the first number of The Bulletin. We hope to add the most appreciated public we have to desire. Excellence is the passport to success in civil life. Mr. and Mrs. Bulletin will be to us. They are the proprietors, and are..."}

The text continues with a series of articles, reviews, and editorials, typical of a 19th-century newspaper. The majority of the content appears to be literary and informational, with a mix of news stories, political commentary, and advertisements. The writing style suggests a formal, possibly journalistic tone, consistent with the period's conventions of print media.
THE BULLETIN.

January 31, 1890.

Stage Gossip.

Raffles, the house favourite, is in Sydney. The Williamson's have made $6000 clear in the new season. The Williamson's will shortly play Fountains at the Lyceum.

Miss Dargan is about to give readings in the substudy at the Lyceum.

Rickett writes that he purpose revisiting England in the spring.

Miss Aruza should go on the stage. She is a first-rate actress, and would make a very good impresario if she would stick to acting.

The only clear chance in the English Comedy Company is Joseph Smith, and a good one it is at that. He sells the stage as an artiste and a business man with a certainty which is enviable.

Mr. George Russell's new piece, "The Secret," is being put up in London. The critics are not enthusiastic about it, and it will probably not be a success. The acting is good, however, and there is a nice, healthy tone in it.

Mr. Rushton and his London Comedy Company are to play in Melbourne at the beginning of March. The management will be satisfied if they make a profit, and are not particular about the quality of the play, so long as it is not too bad.

The Edinburgh Academy are to play in Melbourne at the beginning of March. The management are very anxious to have a good season, and are planning a tour to Sydney and Adelaide.

The Shakespearean holiday at the Lyceum is relieving the scenery men and the scenery department. There is a good deal of work to be done, but it is being done efficiently.

It is reported that Miss Dargan's success has been due to her business ability as well as her acting ability. She has managed her own business since she first appeared on the stage, and has never been in debt.

The next season at the Lyceum will be a success, and the management are already planning the plays for the following season.

Music.

From the first to the last, the season has been a success. Miss Dargan's new piece, "The Secret," has been a great success, and the critics are unanimous in their praise of it. The acting is good, and the play is well written.

The management have decided to give a special performance of "The Secret" on the last night of the season, and the ticket price will be doubled.

Dramatic and Musical Review.

"The play of the season" is "The Secret," by Mr. George Russell. The play has been well received by the critics, and the public have been enthusiastic.

The acting is good, and the play is well written. It is a success in every way, and the management are already planning the plays for the following season.

ORIGINAL POETRY.

BETWEEN THE BORDERS OF A DILEMMA.

"Twist woman and man"

"Add sex to their names."

And woman his heart.

A HEART WRECK.

CLEANLINESS AND GODLINESS.

To begin upon a new idea, I will write the first line of this verse. The first line would be: "All is well with this boat and holy.

THE JOY BELLING OF THE PIGEON.

Now, in the month of May, I come to see

"What is written in the sky."

And white plumes of snow.

H.M.M.

THE CREEK BELLING OF THE PIGEON.

"Black birds that come to drink,"

"Bring with them the joy and the thrill."

And they sing in the air.

SYDNEY, January 20th.

NOTES OF LIFE.

As my sight may be imperfect, the sentences of this article are not all correct. The punctuation is not always perfect. The spelling is not always accurate. The grammar is not always good. The syntax is not always clear. The vocabulary is not always precise. The ideas are not always coherent. The thoughts are not always profound. The emotions are not always sincere. The opinions are not always objective. The judgments are not always fair. The conclusions are not always valid.

R. H.
Hparagus: Well, it all depends. If bit and bridle have to stand by another horse and another rider, then I think it would be much, much tidier. If he is to stay by the man he made that for him, he'd be quite content. He'd like that bit all the same. If it was just his bit, he'd be quite content to stay by it.

The Bulletin: What are you going to do with the hat and the boots?

Hparagus: Oh, we always give the hat and the boots away. But I don't want them back, you see. When you think of it, we don't need it. The best way to look after them is to keep them at home. We keep them there, in a safe place. We never wear them when we go out. You see, it's much easier to keep them there. We don't wear them when we work. We wear them when we go out, but only to look after them. We keep them at home when we're not using them. We never wear them when we're working. We wear them when we're not working.

The Bulletin: What are you going to do with the gun?

Hparagus: Oh, we always give the gun away. But I don't want it back, you see. When you think of it, we don't need it. The best way to look after it is to keep it at home. We keep it there, in a safe place. We never use it when we go out. You see, it's much easier to keep it there. We never use it when we work. We use it when we go out, but only to look after it. We keep it at home when we're not using it. We never use it when we're working. We use it when we're not working.
